Solitude

I live out of the world,
Far from the land.
"A Lightkeeper?" they ask,
And shake my hand;
"It must be lonely out there?"
They do not understand.

For, rock-bound by the tide,
And free from the throng,
Sweet peace fills my breast
The whole day long,
Every window's wind-whistle
Is a blackbird's nesting song.